Refinery ablaze

FLAMES and smoke billow skyward from fire at the Gulf Oil refinery at Philadelphia, Pa., Sunday. The blaze destroyed at least seven oil storage tanks. One continued to burn today and another spewed blazing naphtha. Bodies of three firemen were recovered but three others are missing. (Story, p. 6) (UPI)

Anti-Red violence spreads to Azores

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Anti-Communist violence spread today to the Azores Islands where angry crowds burned a Communist party headquarters. The action came as Premier Vasco Goncalves mounted an offensive to rescue his floundering prestige in the face of such opposition.

Crowds protesting Goncalves' pro-Communist policies burned or destroyed Communist party or other extremist leftists' headquarters in more than 50 Portuguese towns and cities during the past few weeks. At least six persons have died and hundreds were injured.

The Azores Islands in the Atlantic, site of a major U.S. air base, have shown signs of increasing dissatisfaction with the left-wing military leaders in Lisbon and have spoken of declaring their own independence. The Portuguese colony of Timor in the Indonesian archipelago has done the same, touching off violence in which several hundred persons were hurt.

A crowd of farmers in Angra do Heroismo in the Azores early today attacked and burned the local Communist headquarters after meeting to discuss milk prices. Police said the fire spread and burned down an adjacent bakery.

Police said there were 10 Communists inside the party's headquarters when the farmers arrived, but that they escaped through a backdoor. One of the demonstrators was reported injured.

A spokesman for Goncalves said he was reported to have attacked his critics at a Communist-organized labor union rally in the industrial suburb of Almada, a Communist stronghold.

The event will mark the prime minister's first appearance since the current political crisis and anti-Communist violence broke out five weeks ago.

Shoshone lad rescues dangling Gooding youth

SHOSHONE — A Shoshone teenager Sunday rescued a drowning boy who was dangling helplessly with his head in the water.

Tim Wilson, 13, probably escaped drowning because of the alert reaction of 10-year-old Danny Magoffin.

Wilson had been swimming in the Little Wood River in the Shoshone City Park when his foot became entangled in a rope hanging from a bridge over the waterway.

The boy, suspended by one leg, was left dangling head down in the swift current.

After an unsuccessful attempt by an unidentified youth to free Wilson, Magoffin dived into the water and, after several minutes of fighting the current, was able to pull Wilson onto the bridge and free his leg.

TF man 'fair'

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was reported in fair condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital following an accident early Sunday morning.

Steven Threlkeld, 24, suffered multiple lacerations when his car left Addison Ave. E. and struck a concrete irrigation ditch culvert about 2 a.m. Sunday.

According to Idaho State Police reports, Threlkeld's car was demolished. He was driving west on Addison Avenue about two miles east of Twin Falls.

Officers said Threlkeld was charged with drunken driving.

The Wilson youth sustained severe rope burns on his ankles.

Young Wilson today said his foot became entangled as he swam beneath the bridge.

"I yelled for help," Wilson told the Times-News. After the unsuccessful rescue attempt, Magoffin jumped into the river. Wilson said.

"First he gripped my leg real firm. Then he grabbed my arm and pulled me up across his chest and then I let go of the rope."

Asked how long the rescue took, Wilson said, "I don't know, but I was really scared."

He said Magoffin, during the rescue, "walked to me and told me everything would be all right."

Wilson, the son of Mrs. Faye Mann, was attending a family reunion in the park.

According to the rescuer, "It was no big deal."

Magoffin said "at first I thought he was drowning around." But after seeing the first attempt at a rescue, "I thought I'd better do something."

Magoffin said he had taken the first week of a Red Cross lifesaving course which had taught him a cross-chest carry used to hold a victim, who is used to hold the victim's head and chest above water until he could free his leg.

The boy, who also had stressed calming the victim, "I talked to him, told him everything was all right."

"Probably anyone else could have done it," Magoffin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Magoffin, said.

Rabin defends Sinai terms

By United Press International

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin appeared before an angry session of the Israeli parliament today and defended the proposed interim peace agreement with Egypt against charges by right-wing opponents that the United States was forcing down Israel's throat.

Rabin cautioned that the agreement was not yet complete and could still fail. Although he said negotiations were still at a delicate state, sentiment appeared to be building up among rightwingers against Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Those right-wing Likud party members demanded that Rabin resign.

Four demonstrators gathered in front of the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv today, 10 of them carrying rabbits. They also carried signs reading: "Kissinger go home" and "Rabin, You're a Rabb" Other demonstrators gathered outside the Knesset (parliament) building in Jerusalem with anti-Kissinger and anti-Rabin signs.

The right-wing groups called for major demonstrations when Kissinger arrives here Thursday and police were taking unusually firm security precautions to protect the Secretary of State, ringing the King David Hotel in Jerusalem with extra troops.

Before appearing in parliament Rabin told a caucus of Likud party's ruling alignment that the United States had made "unprecedented" promises to Israel. These presumably were the use of a U.S. civilian force to help man early warning systems in the Demilitarized Zone of the Sinai desert and nearly $3 billion in aid.

In an address punctuated by jeers and catcalls Rabin assured his critics there was no danger to Israel's security.

Watched by 109 policemen and four police officers, the demonstrators stood behind blue iron police barricades at the U.S. Embassy and held live, fury rabbits to symbolize what they said was the lameness of Rabin and his cabinet ministers in bowing to American pressure to enter into a pact with Egypt.

The chairman of the Young Herd, Michael Klemmer, 27, gave a letter addressed to Kissinger to an embassy official asking the secretary not to come to Israel if he is going to force it into a settlement with Egypt.

"If he comes to force us into an agreement, we don't want him here," Klemmer said.

While the Likud was demanding Rabin's resignation, some 50 women gathered outside the Knesset building in Jerusalem and demonstrated against the government's policies. They carried signs reading "No Munich here" and "We are not dogs to jump through Kissinger's hoop."

A few of the women paraded about the plaza wearing dog collars and leashes. They were led by a woman carrying an effigy of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Kissinger, after talks with President Ford in Vail, Colo., said he was optimistic about the resumption of his Middle East shuttle mission. He arrives in Israel Thursday and Egyptian reports said he would meet President Anwar Sadat in Alexandria on Friday.

The Israeli parliamentary session was one of the angriest sessions in memory.

Spy powers big danger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is at adept at foreign spying that if a dictator turned the spy technology toward domestic affairs Americans would have "no way to fight back," says Sen. Frank Church.

The Idaho Democrat, who heads a Senate committee investigating U.S. intelligence agencies, warned Sunday of the potential danger of the "very extensive capability of intercepting messages" which he said is essential in keeping track of foreign enemies.

But he said it "at any time could be turned around on the American people, and no American would have any privacy left, such is the capability to monitor everything — telephone conversations, telegrams, it doesn't matter."

"There would be no place to hide," he said.

Interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," Church also said the work of his committee investigating the CIA and other agencies must run its course before he decides whether or not to make a bid for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976.

Church said he had "called off" any efforts to develop a campaign in his behalf while the investigation is continuing. "After this investigation has run its course, that's a different matter," Church said.

"If this government ever became a tyranny, if a dictator ever took charge in this country, the technological capacity that the intelligence community has given the government could enable it to impose total tyranny and there would be no way to fight back," he said.

He said "the most careful effort to combine resistance to the government, no matter how privately it was done, is in the reach of the government to know, such is the capability of this technology."

"We must see to it that the (CIA) and all agencies that possess this technology, operate within the law and under proper supervision so that we never cross that abyss," he said. "That's the abyss from which there is no return."

Church appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press." He did not disclose any new data from the CIA probe but said getting information from the CIA and other agencies sometimes is "like pulling teeth."

Airline barks at aid runs

TOKYO (UPI) — A Japan Air Lines spokesman said today JAL will refuse any future requests to fly terrorists to safety in countries which might offer them political asylum.

Susumu Tanaka, JAL's director of flight operations, told newsmen his airline would never again neglect its performance of earlier this month when it ferried five Red Army terrorists and five imprisoned radicals from Kuala Lumpur to Tokyo. JAL made the flight Aug. 6 to save the lives of 33 hostages as guerrillas were holding at the American embassy in Kuala Lumpur.

"If we are asked by somebody, I think we'll refuse to do that again," Tanaka said. "As a citizen I feel that a flight of that kind should never be conducted against our profession moral."

Tanaka said the request to make the Kuala Lumpur flight came from "the top echelon of the Japanese government" but that the JAL crew under Capt. Tomio Mashiko was not ordered to make the flight.

Power wins over environment

BOISE (UPI) — A survey sponsored by Pacific Northwest Power Company indicates fewer Idahoans put power needs ahead of environmental concerns today than in 1973.

Between June 3 and June 9, 1,100 adults of Idaho and Oregon were interviewed and among the questions asked was, "If there must be a compromise between power needs and environmental protection, which do you feel should receive the most consideration — power needs or the environment?"

Surveys also were made in 1973 and 1974.

In Idaho, 61 per cent of those questioned in 1973 gave priority to power needs and 33 per cent to the environment. Last year, those percentages were 56 per cent for power and 34 per cent for environment.

This year, 53 per cent put power needs first and 37 per cent environmental concerns. Ten per cent had no opinion.

On another question, 34 per cent of the Idahoans queried favored building additional dams on the Middle Snake River and 44 per cent opposed such construction. Twenty two per cent had no opinion. Support for the dams was higher than in 1973 but lower than last year.

Funeral atmosphere 'tense'

MADRID (UPI) —

Policemen and right-wing demonstrators attending the funeral of a police lieutenant slain by Marxist guerrillas, tore the pennant from a minister's car today and shouted anti-government slogans.

The news agency Europa Press said the funeral produced a "tense" atmosphere. It said some cars of officials were damaged in a melee outside the headquarters of the paramilitary Guardia Civil police force in whose chapel the funeral mass was read.

The crowd, estimated at 2,000, shouted "power to the army," "Justice! Justice!" and "Down with terrorism!" "Assassins!" and "Cowards!"

"When I started my new business I wasn't sure just how to let everyone know of the service I was now ready to perform for Magic Valley. To start, I decided to place an ad in the Times-News. I contacted one of the representatives and selected a small package. The first ad came out on a Tuesday and I was amazed that before the end of that week I had received over 20 phone calls asking about my services and had actually sold several jobs for the coming week. I've really got to hand it to the ad guys at the T-N. I didn't do any other advertising at all. My Company's name wasn't even listed in the Telephone Book. I'm sold... Advertising in the Times-News really started me off with a bang!"

New debates on HMOs looming

By ELIZABETH BOWMAN
Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON Admitting that their earlier efforts had failed, several key members of Congress are trying to undo parts of a 1973 law intended to spur development of alternative health care groups called health maintenance organizations (HMOs).

Supporters contend that HMOs can lower medical costs because they stress preventive care instead of expensive hospitalization. In spite of following the traditional practice of billing patients 75¢ each service, actually provided: HMOs provide a range of health services to members who pay a fixed monthly fee in advance.

But partly because of resistance by organized medicine, development of HMOs has been slow in the United States. The 1973 law set up an experimental federal aid program designed to help them get a foothold in the health care market.

HMO groups, the Ford administration and organized labor, however, have decided that the utopian requirements of the 1973 act actually make it harder for HMOs to compete with traditional health insurance plans. They complain that the act asks HMOs to single-handedly solve many health problems long neglected by traditional insurance plans.

"HMOs were never designed to be the panacea of the health care system," argues Rep. James F. Hastings, R-N.Y., House sponsor of amendments which would relax the requirements of the 1973 law. HMOs complain that the act requires them to provide services members may not want, keep enrollment fees unrealistically low for some families and accept patients whose medical problems are so severe that they cannot get health insurance elsewhere. These requirements, however desirable in theory, drive membership fees much higher than standard health insurance premiums. HMOs argue.

"It's like giving someone $10 to start a Kool-Aid stand which he has to sell at 5¢ a glass and then telling him 'now get out there and compete,'" complains Walter McClure, associate director of a private firm active in HMOs research.

James A. Lane of the California-based Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, the nation's largest HMO — points out that 30 per cent of the group's northern California members, or 360,000 persons, had chosen HMO plans with fewer benefits than the act requires. To provide all the required benefits, Lane said, Kaiser would have to raise rates by as much as 10 per cent and probably would lose members as a result.

The proposed amendments would allow HMOs to design a more flexible benefit package and repeal or postpone other requirements of the act. The requirements apply to all HMOs seeking federal aid or federal qualification. The 1973 act requires certain employers to offer their workers the option of joining a "qualified" HMO.

Hastings' bill breezed through a House subcommittee in late July despite opposition by the American Medical Association (AMA). The AMA had opposed the 1973 act on grounds it subsidized HMOs over traditional medical practices.

The AMA maintains that Congress passed the act to test whether HMOs could provide complete health care for all types of members during an experimental federal funding period. Deleting the act's requirements eliminates the reason for federal aid, the AMA contends.

"If in fact the HMO is to be no different from prepaid groups which have existed without federal funding," said Edgar T. Beddingfield Jr. of the AMA, "then we submit there is no justification for federal funding under the guise of experimentation or otherwise."

Spouses of the amendments dismiss the AMA's position as a barely disguised expression of its continuing opposition to federal aid to HMOs. "It's plain to me that they're opposed to HMOs and would like to see them go down the tubes," said Hastings. "But the AMA's position could carry some weight in the House."

What will happen in the Senate depends largely on Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who pushed for the requirements of the 1973 act as a way of improving health care. An aide said Kennedy had take no position on the proposed amendments, but those supporting them expected him to proceed cautiously. Kennedy's health subcommittee will hold hearings on the issue in the early fall.

"The only trouble I see on the Senate side (in getting the amendments passed) is with those people who think HMOs should be more than a competing mechanism, who think they should do something of social benefit," said James F. Doherty, who lobbies for HMOs belonging to the Group Health Association of America.

Doherty argues that the social issues Kennedy and others raised in 1973 should be addressed in national health insurance legislation, not in the HMO measure.

Those supporting the amendments fear that Kennedy will try to revise special federal subsidies for HMOs. The Senate approved such subsidies in 1973 to help HMOs meet the act's requirements, but the House refused to accept them in the final version of the bill.

Although he supports subsidies in principle, Richard S. Schweiher, R-Pa., Senate sponsor of the amendments, argues that including them again would jeopardize House and administration support for the amendments.

Although the government estimates that 140 new HMOs have started operation since 1970, those supporting the amendments expect a stall in HMO development until the 1973 act is rewritten. According to government figures compiled in May, 1973 HMOs now serve 5.7 million members in the United States.

"We're working on it, comrade, we're working on it."

Restraining ourselves best US course

WASHINGTON The American Bar Association, meeting in Montreal, heard three heavyweights the other day on the issue of presidential power.

The three distinguished scholars came up with a conclusion that even these lightweights could have reached: Time and events have confirmed, willy-nilly, to confer great powers upon our Presidents, and willy-nilly, Presidents will use them.

Professor Arthur Schlesinger, who helped to foster the imperial presidency, once more expressed dismay at his offspring. Professor James MacGregor Burns, whose tribe in the party system remains touchingly strong, once more advocated a strengthening of the party system. Professor Raoul Berger, who contributed so much to the aborted impeachment of Richard Nixon, turned around on the theme of a President's war-making powers, when he found insufficiently restrained.

The topic is as old as the Constitution itself, but it is not a topic that would be reserved for intellectual dispute. All of us can get in this act.

Does the executive have too much power? Yes. Is the excess of power likely to be surrendered voluntarily? No. Is the presidential power likely to increase? Yes. Will Congress do anything about it? No. Will the judiciary restrain the presidency? Only in the most extraordinary instances. What, then, should be done? The answer is to elect Presidents with some sense of self-restraint, and to hope for the best.

It has a pessimistic coda, so be it. Under the original plan of our federated union, the states were to provide a massive bulwark against the excesses of national power. But the states today are not even paper barricades.

Under the theory of separation of powers, the three branches of government were conceived as related planets, each confined to its own orbit; but the theory no longer commands respect. Inevitably, as national problems have demanded national attack, political power has surged to Washington, and inevitably, within Washington, the exercise of that power has gone to the President and to the executive agencies.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK
Man and boy, I have spent most of my life hearing talk of "restoring the balance of power," and is all talk. Now and then Congress sits its fatby bulk and exercises some forgotten muscle, but it is only now and then. The more familiar pattern is for Congress not to assert its powers, but to abdicate them. Read any day's Federal Register and perceive where power lies.

All this was forecast. If I were dean of a college, and could fit required courses, I would require that every student spend a semester studying the Virginia Convention of 1788. This was the greatest recorded gathering of political minds in the history of this republic. The questions of power that absorbed the scholars at Monticello were the identical questions that absorbed the delegates at Richmond.

Listen to Patrick Henry. "If your American chieftain be a man of ambition and abilities, how easy it is for him to render himself absolute." The army is in his hands. "There is to be a great and mighty President, with very extensive powers — the powers of a king." He is to be supported in extravagant magnificence. Will not the influence of the President himself have great weight in his re-election? The variety of offices at his disposal will acquire him the favor and attachment of those who aspire after them.

The underlying theme of that convention was power. Henry insisted that power be sparingly delegated and rigorously restrained. "If you give too little power today, you may give more tomorrow. But the reverse of that proposition will not hold. If you give too much power today, you cannot take it tomorrow; for tomorrow will never come for that purpose."

That was the forecast. If I were dean of a college, and could fit required courses, I would require that every student spend a semester

Exporting morality right

WASHINGTON An American aircraft manufacturer has just asserted in a forthcoming way that it paid at least $30 million over the last five years to foreign politicians.

The payoffs paid off, says Lockheed, part of its $2 billion in sales to foreign nations over that period as a result of doing as the Romans do. No U.S. laws were broken, the company acted to meet foreign payoff competition, thousands of U.S. workers lost their jobs to Lockheed's willingness to follow local customs and the U.S. taxpayer, which keeps the company in business by guaranteeing some of its loans, has the guarantee protected by the success of the bribery.

"Sorry, Charlie, business is business," Lockheed seems to say to the hell-bent hounds of publicity in senatorial and media pulpits, who now howl their horror at practices common to overseas trade since Marples' time.

I sat down to write an essay defending corporations against the politically inspired allegation of ex post facto malpractice. But a lust for philosophical consistency brings me on the side of the gung-ho, bleeding hearts and frank churchgoers who will be as uncomfortable with my support as Lam to their in-laws.

The question at issue is: Should the public policy of the United States be to export its ideas, about what is right and wrong to the rest of the world? Put another way, do we have a mission to sell our ideals of freedom and virtue in the far corners of the earth?

The answer is yes. Our founding fathers rebelled against tyranny not just for ourselves, but for all mankind. That's a pretty righteous notion, unmatched in the world until the onset of communism.

America has a mission to perfect her own freedom and to encourage the growth of her ideals everywhere. Not every American believes that, but those who do can make five points about current affairs consistent with that principle:

1. We are right to pressure the Soviets to permit more human freedom within their borders in return for trade.

2. We are wrong to tell Portugal's anti-Communists that we are powerless to assist them because our President is fearful of criticism if he uses the CIA.

3. We are right to help democratic nations like Israel to survive and prosper in a region of one-man governments, just as we were right to try to help allies in the past to resist totalitarian takeover.

4. We are wrong to maintain official silence about the rape of freedom in India, and cowardly to accept Secretary Henry Kissinger's slur that speaking out in criticism of Mrs. Gandhi would merely "satisfy our self-esteem."

We are right to try to impose our standards of morality in doing business abroad, and to refuse to conduct bribery from now on.

That's being consistent. The trouble is, few Americans will subscribe to all five applications of that missionary principle. Most of us will be moralists in politics and pragmatists in business, or vice versa.

For example, the political pragmatists who say "We cannot impose our ideas of Western culture on societies totally different from our own" are likely to be in the vanguard of business moralists, who say exactly the opposite: that we must impose our most recent ideas of business ethics on the brothers-in-law of Arab sheiks and the campagne managers of sitting dictators.

Sorry, but rationality does not permit us to choose one from column A and one from column B. It is not possible to satisfy both carrying the American message of freedom and virtue on political matters, and then suddenly to adopt the business-is-business argument on the conduct of business men abroad.

WILLIAM SAFIRE
Frankly, the pragmatists have all the fun. In the sunshine of detente, they can shrug off conquest by communism in Portugal, and in the cool of detachment, they can easily watch the conquest by coup in India. And if some businessman is to grease a few palms under the palmtrees, what's the big deal?

Moralists, on the other hand, are pests. Economic freedom is a bother; meddling in other people's business leads to friction; bumbling democracies are harder to maintain than efficient dictatorships; honesty is the most troublesome policy and morality, our least desired export.

And yet America, to herself, must be a force for good. Ethics in business is a part of the American dream, even if we have fallen short often enough. America stands for competition on the basis of quality, price and service, and not on payola. If, in the short run, this costs us jobs and money, that's the price we pay for setting standards.

Holler-than-you? Sorry about that, but democracy and honest competition are holier than totalitarianism and bribery. American ways and ideals should travel arm and arm with American trade and power, and that goes for allies, detente, and Lockheed.

...SO I SAID IF SUSAN TOLD ME SHE WAS HAVING AN AFFAIR, I WOULDN'T BE SURPRISED BUT I WOULD CERTAINLY COUNSEL HER AND ADVISE HER ON THE SUBJECT AND I WOULD WANT TO KNOW PRETTY MUCH ABOUT THE YOUNG MAN THAT SHE WAS PLANNING TO HAVE THE AFFAIR WITH...OF COURSE, SHE'S STILL PRETTY YOUNG, BUT THEN ON THE OTHER HAND...

Declaration needed month

By Encyclopaedia Britannica (UPI)

Events leading to the formal signing of the Declaration of Independence are described in this capsule summary.

The Declaration of Independence was formally adopted by the delegates to the Second Continental Congress, meeting in Philadelphia, on July 4, 1776. Two days earlier, a resolution had been passed which said that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved. The introduction on June 7 of this resolution, by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia, had been followed by the appointment of a committee to draft a statement declaring the reasons for the impending separation. Of the members of this committee, which included Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman and Robert Livingston, it was Jefferson who prepared the draft, submitting it to the others for consideration. Minor changes in Jefferson's draft were suggested by Adams and Franklin. Some further alterations were made after it was presented to the Congress on June 28. The final words, however, were still largely those of Jefferson. At its passage, it was signed only by John Hancock, the presiding officer. Four days later the Declaration of Independence was read aloud in the city of Philadelphia at what later became Independence Square. Copies were made, sent to the legislatures of the colonies, and published throughout the country. The declaration was not signed by the other members of the Congress and August 2, when a copy engraved on parchment was witnessed with their names.

This anonymous notice, quoted in its entirety, appeared on the last page of the Peninsular Evening Post, July 2, 1776.

Ford on 4-state sweep

VAILE, Colo. (UPI) — President Ford embarks today on a whirlwind two-day, four-state trip to spurn his domestic policies and to drum up Republican support for his presidential candidacy.

Because the emphasis was heavy on policies during the swing through the state, Ford made seven speeches and eight appearances. White House press secretary, Ron Nessen said the Republican National Committee will pick up Ford's expenses.

The only exception was today's trip to Billie, Colo., to inspect an oil shale demonstration project.

Ford's other travels will take him to Iowa, Minneapolis and Illinois. Sen. Gary Hart, Colo., will be on hand to greet him when he flies by helicopter from nearby Avon to Rifle and Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., will be there when Ford arrives in Minneapolis tonight.

The President will walk through 1,200 feet of an underground mine at Rifle to stress his interest in future energy resources. A White House aide said there are 1.3 million barrels of shale oil potential in Colorado, Wyoming and Utah. Colorado alone has 44 per cent of the country's supply.

"The potential is so fantastic but the technology has not yet been developed and is not economically feasible," said White House aide.

After touring the oil shale development, Ford will go to Des Moines for what his aides describe as a "significant speech on farm policy." "Farmers in the drought stricken area, Ford's appearance there and at the Iowa State Fair comes at a time when his popularity has been lagging with the farmers, although rising with the rest of the population in the state."

His appearance also was designed to help pull out the Iowa Republican Party, $70,000 in the red. He will address a fund raising dinner of Iowa Republicans before going to Minneapolis.

On Tuesday morning, Ford meets with regional newspaper and broadcast representatives there with Republican leaders before going on to the Minneapolis Convention Center to deliver a speech before the American Legion.

Mrs. Hoffa collapses

DETROIT (UPI) — After 30 days, the tension and fear became too much for Josephine Hoffa, the ailing wife of missing Teamsters leader James Hoffa, collapsed Sunday and was hospitalized.

Mrs. Hoffa, devoted to the former Teamsters president who disappeared July 2, broke down in her suburban Lake Orion, Mich., home from the strain and the stress.

She is exhausted physically and emotionally," her son James P. Hoffa, 31, said.

The scores of federal state and city police searching for Hoffa were just as frustrated if infinitely less emotionally involved.

Michigan State Police Director George Halvorson said, "We don't even know what crime we are investigating. All we know is that we have got a missing person."

Refinery blaze claims 3 lives

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — An oil refinery fire is a fearsome thing. "We thought we were in pretty good shape," Gulf Oil Co. refinery manager Jack Burke said. "Then it flashed and that's when we lost control."

Before it was over, two multiple alarm fires erupted through the huge Gulf Oil refinery in south Philadelphia within seven hours Sunday, destroying seven storage tanks and sending balls of flame and smoke soaring 200 feet.

Three firemen died in the fires and three others were unaccounted for.

Thirteen more firemen were injured in the refinery early on 11-alarm fire which broke out at the refinery barely seven hours after a two-alarm fire had been brought under control.

Fire Commissioner Joseph Rizzo said there was a "flash of light" only hundreds of feet from him as firemen hosed down the rubble of the first blaze. He said "there were three firemen standing about 200 feet in front of me," and he saw them go down.

Snake still found from the refinery early today. Mayor Frank Rizzo, the fire commissioner's brother, said, "We have to let it burn out because if vapors build up and become locked we get explosions. We've still got a live fire."

To keep the blaze contained, firemen hosed down other tanks which Rizzo said contained "hundreds of thousands of barrels of naphthalene and gasoline."

Assistant Deputy Fire Marshal Edward Stevens said the second fire began when a tank containing crude oil burst into flames and two smaller tanks of naphthalene erupted, followed by four more crude oil tanks.

Stevens said the area burning covered about six city blocks.

The refinery is located along the Schuylkill River and next to another huge Atlantic Richfield Co. refinery, which was not in any immediate danger.

The fires caused massive traffic jams on a nearby bridge, a major artery for eastward bound weekend traffic. The bridge also was closed for today's morning rush hour traffic into the city.

Burke said the fires could burn for "two or three days."

Aspin rips arms sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., says U.S. arms sales figures have the earmarks of a "mindless arms race" and the President and Secretary of State seem unconcerned about the impact.

Aspin said Sunday U.S. commercial weapons sales were running nearly five times the 1971 level and Defense Department sales were up 90 per cent over last year.

Neither the State Department nor the Department of Defense had an immediate reaction to Aspin's charges.

Kidnaper's conscience cracks; Bronfman free, abductors jailed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eight days of pressure apparently were too much for Dominic Byrne, wracked by conscience, he fled officers to a dimly lit Brooklyn apartment where they freed kidnapped whisky heir Samuel Bronfman II and captured the second of his alleged abductors.

"It was over" in two seconds, said Detective Thomas Cerbone, who broke into the one-bedroom apartment Sunday with police and FBI agents.

Officers grabbed a surprised Mel Patrick Lynch, 37, who was guarding Byrne, 37, Bronfman and unshaven — sat bound and blindfolded on a couch against the wall.

"Thank God," he said as officers removed adhesive tape from his eyes. Unharnessed, he was taken by limousine to his father's Fifth Avenue apartment.

The FBI said the $2.3 million ransom paid by the kidnappers, Edgar Bronfman, chairman of the board of Seagram's Ltd., was recovered in the home of an elderly friend of Byrne's.

Byrne, 37, owner of a limousine service, and Lynch, a city fireman, were charged with extortion by mail. The FBI said they believed the two acted alone. Officers said the elderly friend was an innocent victim of the scheme.

It convicted, the two could be fined up to $5,000 and sentenced to 20 years in prison. Federal agents indicated they may be charged with kidnapping later.

The FBI said the $2.3 million ransom paid by the kidnappers, Edgar Bronfman, chairman of the board of Seagram's Ltd., was recovered in the home of an elderly friend of Byrne's.

Young Bronfman and his father left the city Sunday for sedation and rest. The family said there would be no statements.

But a spokesman added,

"Sam is in really fine shape," his spokesman said.

Cerbone and other officers said it was the end of a frustrating week of searching and tense negotiations.

Samuel, 21, was abducted Aug. 9 after leaving his father's tree-shaded estate in Yorktown Heights, N.Y. His car, keys still in the ignition, was found in the driveway of his divorced mother's home in Purchase, N.Y.

Enduring Mideast peace still goal

VAILE, Colo. (UPI) — Even if he succeeds in arranging an interim Middle East agreement in the next two weeks, there still would not be an enduring peace, says Henry Kissinger.

But the Secretary of State said Sunday "there is now a good chance of success" of reaching an interim Egyptian-Israeli pact and there is a possibility "a small number" of American civilian volunteers might be used in the Sinai desert to monitor the boundaries.

At a news conference at President Ford's vacation resort, Kissinger said "some details remain to be negotiated" before the agreement is signed.

Ford announced Kissinger would leave Washington for Tel Aviv at midnight Wednesday on a "critically important mission."

All the parties "agree that this will not be the end of the process" and that "we will only have traveled part of the road," Kissinger said.

Grain sale effect eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration farm officials plan to unveil Thursday their official forecast of the "minimal" food price increase they expect as a result of Soviet grain sales and a decline in 1975 crop prospects.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has used the "minimal" description in defending grain sales to Russia. He also has said that despite some losses because of a drought in corn areas, an August estimate still forecast 1975 grain crops at record levels.

Department economists, meanwhile, have been reassessing the food price outlook and said they plan to announce on Thursday — with unusual fanfare — a new report on the food supply and price outlook.

The report will revise an earlier forecast that if crops earlier were bad this year 1975 food prices would average 6 to 8 per cent above 1974 in contrast to the 14 to 15 per cent increase of the two preceding years.

Shoshone seniors plan trip

SHOSHONE — A trip to Yellowstone National Park is planned by the Lincoln County Senior Citizens.

They will be going by the county-owned bus, leaving at 1 p.m. Aug. 29 and returning home on Aug. 31.

According to Mrs. Willa Carraway, coordinator for the organization, there is a waiting list and anyone wishing to go may contact her, and they would then be eligible to go if there are any last minute cancellations. Cost of the trip will be $30, including lodge and bus. Meals are extra.

The center is starting a new nutrition program with a congregate meal at the center on North Rail Street Tuesday of each week. The usual potluck dinner is now on the first Tuesday of the month.

The Idaho Public Health Department has informed the center that no home canned food may be used but fresh produce may be frozen and used. Should residents have extra produce, the seniors would be happy to pick the crop for freezing.

The Lincoln County Senior Citizens will host Shoshone seniors at a picnic Thursday at noon at Our Lady of the Snows Catholic Church in Hailey.

Members of the Burmah Club at Riefield will host a picnic for the senior citizens at the Riefield park on Friday.

After 2 years, 60 indictments, US grain fraud probe still expanding

By BERNARD BRENNER

UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A two-year probe that already has produced 60 indictments on charges involving corruption and graft in grain inspection and export deals is still expanding.

But when it is finished there will be no assurance it won't happen again, says Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, unless Congress approves a complete federal takeover of grain inspection. It now is handled primarily by government-licensed private and state agents.

Administration officials indicate they may propose more limited reforms involving strengthened federal supervision over private inspectors.

The issue is important to the national economy as well as to farmers who supply the billions of dollars worth of grain flowing into export markets annually, says Undersecretary of Agriculture J. Phil Campbell.

If foreign buyers lose confidence in the accuracy of American grain inspection and the quality of U.S. shipments, he says, they could turn to other suppliers in years of ample world grain supplies.

"To have our foreign markets for grain cut off by dissatisfied foreign customers threatens our whole economy," Campbell told a Senate hearing in June.

"Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said later, however, the controversy over corruption in grain inspection has been 'overplayed.' Butz argued that while even one case of corruption is too many, only 1 per cent of export grain cargoes in recent years has produced quality complaints from abroad.

Official concern about possible corruption and government inefficiency in supervising inspections began about two years ago after internal USDA audits and complaints about inspections in New Orleans, which handles more than one-third of the U.S. grain exports, valued at $12.5 billion a year.

The Agriculture Department, which denies it was slow in moving on earlier reports of possible corruption, began an investigation in September, 1973—only to find the FBI had begun its own probe.

The Internal Revenue Service entered the case and the scope of the probe broadened to cover suspicions of misgrading of grain, thefts of grain committed through short-weighting shipments, and other offenses including tax evasion.

A year ago, indictments began flowing from grand juries in New Orleans and Houston. Initial cases charged private inspectors with taking bribes to clear ships fit to load grain.

But as new investigative leads flowed in, the indictments moved on to matters including grain thefts and defendants including officials of major grain firms.

One indictment named the Bunge Corp., one of the largest U.S. international exporters.

The most recent, on Aug. 7, brought charges against 22 individuals and a corporation operating the St. Charles Grain Elevator at Destrehan, La. The corporation was charged with conspiracy to steal grain by falsifying inspection misgrading and shortweighting.

Congress, looking for corrective measures, has two investigations of its own under way.

One is by the Senate Agriculture Committee and another by the General Accounting Office.

The GAO probe will go beyond inspection issues to another field lawmakers say also needs examination: the adequacy of federal grain standards. Some critics say they invite addition of foreign material to shipment arriving at elevators with less foreign matter than the standards allow.

Some administration officials blame part of a wave of foreign quality complaints earlier this year on the fact that some buyers were anxious, during a period when grain prices were relatively low in early 1975, to cut prices on shipments they ordered when prices were high last year.

In the months since the inspection problems began getting widespread attention, the grain supply situation has tightened and prices have regained much of their early 1975 losses.

In periods of tight supply and high prices, some officials say, there are likely to be fewer complainers about grain quality.

New link looms

PORTLAND (GIN)—Ocean-going barge service between Portland and Alaska will start next January when the first of two barges now under construction will be launched.

The primary purpose for building the barges is to ship urea fertilizer from Alaska to Portland. Oregon products will be shipped to Alaska on return trips.

A new grain venture for Oregon may develop from a cooperative project to raise soybeans in the state. The Pacific Northwest Region Commission has provided $80,000 for pilot projects with the soybeans to be used for feed on selected farms and feedlots in Oregon and Idaho. The soybeans would be grown in rotation with wheat.

Soviet purchases may hit $2 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Soviet purchases of American crops this year may increase five-fold to a record $2 billion, the Agriculture Department reported Friday.

The Soviets bought only $400 million worth of American farm products last year.

The estimate came in a report that boosted the forecast for agricultural export sales this year from $18-$20 billion up to a record $22 billion. By comparison sales in the fiscal year that ended June 30 were a record $21.6 billion.

Officials said that in addition to the sizable increase in Russian purchases, Asia, Canada and North Africa are all expected to buy more. Sales to Europe will probably drop because that region has large reserves, and shipments to China, which hit $1 billion two years ago, will be down to only about $400 million.

Officials also forecast that agricultural imports may reach $2.5 billion this year. This would leave a favorable farm trade balance "a little better than the $12 billion record last year."

Soviet officials, facing a drought-shrunk 1975 harvest, have already ordered nearly 10 million tons of American grain valued at about $1.2 billion.

Administration farm officials have asked exporters to delay additional sales until the size of the American harvest becomes clearer, but the export report said "additional purchases by the USSR ... are considered likely considering the magnitude of the shortfall in the Soviet grain crop."

"On this assumption, total U.S. agricultural exports to the USSR ... are forecast at around $2 billion," the report said.

It said Japan, which recently agreed to buy 14 million tons or more of American grains and soybeans annually for three years, probably will take $3.3 billion worth of U.S. farm products this year, about the amount purchased two years ago before a recession trimmed imports.

Sunspots offer yield forecasts

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Farmers may be able to get advance word on crop yields by counting sunspots, an Agriculture Department report indicated.

If it's true, Texas farmers should be on the lookout for a dry spell.

The report said little is known about why the massive magnetic storms on the sun's surface, which occur in cycles, affect the climate on earth.

But it said a review of the cycles and crop yields in several U.S. regions for the years 1866 to 1973 "adds new evidence to support the theory that solar cycles affect the length of growing season, temperature, rainfall ... and other factors which can make or break the crop farmer."

The report said the data showed that:

—Higher than average crop yields may be associated with high sunspot activity, and below-average yields may follow periods like the present—in which sunspot activity is low.

—Sunspot cycles "may prove useful in forecasting crop yield deviations."

The report said records show droughts in the Texas high plains normally come just after one of the low points in "double cycle" sunspot activity.

"In the summer of 1975, sunspot activity is approaching that point," the report said.

Officials said sunspots are only one of a number of factors which can affect crop yields and noted the effects of a specific sunspot phase "may differ drastically from one part of the country to another."

They said, however, their studies showed Texas wheat yields higher than normal in years following high sunspot activity, and below normal after years of low activity. Kansas wheat yields showed little correlation with sunspots, but Illinois corn yields showed the pattern of gains after high sunspot activity and losses after low activity.

No visible relationship was found between Texas cotton yields and sunspot activity, but experts said a link—though difficult to trace—was found involving Louisiana rice yields.

Project near end

CORNING, Iowa (UPI)—The National Farmers Organization's move to consolidate its marketing offices across the country from 61 to about 30 offices is about complete, president Oren Lee Staley said Friday.

Staley said the move was made because of a new computerized system the NFO is using. He said it will allow more specific information to be fed into the computers by more highly trained management personnel.

Although the NFO has had its share of financial problems lately, Staley said the consolidation was not made because of any savings in money.

"They always tell you, you will save money using a computer, but computers are only as good as the information that goes into them," he said. "And, it takes a while to train people for these jobs."

The NFO president, who has held the post for just about the entire 20 years of the organization's existence, said the computerized system has worked very well in the bargaining and selling of members' grain.

Staley also said the loss of jobs because of the consolidation was minimal because most employees have been transferred into other departments.

DEAR ABBY: Since your column is so widely circulated, you can do much for the serious unemployment situation in this country.

I am an executive secretary with one of the top 100 companies in the country. Almost every day, we get applications—for employment—some from new college graduates and some from older men who have been in the business world 20 to 30 years.

I'd like to tell these people not to use form letters, with their names typed in, because individual letters will be more helpful. My boss feels a form letter indicates that the applicant wants a job with ANY company, but an individualized letter means he wants a job with OUR company and no other. The form-letter applicants are not even answered, but are thrown in the wastebasket!

Many qualified applicants who badly need a job strike out because they didn't take the time to send a personalized letter.

CONCERNED SECRETARY

DEAR SECRETARY: Thanks for a worthwhile tip. A word to the wise should be more than sufficient.

Parents
grieve

DEAR ABBY: Here is our dilemma: Our only son, John, committed suicide at age 22. His wife, Bonnie, was pregnant at the time. She immediately went to Canada to live with her people. (We live in New Jersey.)

Our grandson is now 2-years-old, and we've never seen him because neither of us has had the money to visit.

Bonnie wrote to say she was married last June to her husband is doing well in Canada. We can understand why Bonnie wants to forget the tragic past and start a new life, and we agree that she should. (She's only 23.) But where does that leave us? Our grandson is all we have left of John.

What if Bonnie decides to put us out of her life and not even tell her son about his natural father? If that fails to us?

Should we try to keep in contact with Bonnie in hopes that we can see our grandson one day? Or would it be better for him if we dropped out of the picture? We will abide by your decision.

JOHN'S GRIEVING PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Leave it to Bonnie to make that decision and accept it—regardless. I pray for your sake that she keeps in touch with you, sends you snapshots of your grandson and gives you the pleasure of sharing in his growth. And also hope, when the lad is old enough to understand, she will tell him the truth about his natural father.

DEAR ABBY: I must take issue with you concerning an item in your column. One of your contributors signed "Cleene" was undoubtedly the innocent victim of a literary.

The saying that she attributed to a "12-year-old girl" is a famous quotation by Camus, a French philosopher. Perhaps you would like to set the record straight.

FRED IN EL CERRITO

DEAR FRED: Ten whacks for me with "The History of the French Revolution" for not having checked out the quote. Yours was the first of many letters I received pointing out the error. Thanks to you and all the others who wrote.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HOPING IN" MEMPHIS: When a man says, "Can't we be friends?" it's the beginning of the end.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Elderly persons haunt broken-down hotels

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Many elderly persons live the lives of recluses in broken-down hotels and they don't want to move. They're not necessarily poor, and most don't want welfare. A Canadian man, Sister Jean Patrice Golden, member of the Council of Social Affairs office on Senior Citizens in Calgary, Alberta, said within a 37-block area of the center of Calgary 1,000 elderly persons live alone in cold hotel-like buildings.

These people are lonely misanthropists, Jim Aron, F. Ehrlich told a conference on the problems of elderly persons living alone. "They've chosen this kind of lifestyle and they don't want to move. They're not necessarily poor, and most don't want welfare."

"But as one man in one of the rundown neighborhoods told us, he's staying because that's where the action is. He told us, 'Look at the hooligans across the street from my window. Pretty soon, the police will come by and there'll be some excitement. Then the drunks get laid out and the police are back again to deal with them. Where else can you watch all this from your window?'

She said the man keeps a hatchet by the bed in his room, explaining, "You never know who's going to break your door down."

Ehrlich, conference chairman and director of Institute of Applied Gerontology at St. Louis University, said such people need and deserve certain services which they are not getting "because they are being ignored by the rest of the world."

3 stewards fired

BOISE (UPI) — The three stewards at Les Bois Park, whose job it is to supervise racing, were fired Saturday for not performing their duties up to the expectations of the Idaho Horse Racing Commission.

State steward Kenneth E. Malone was fired on a unanimous vote of the Commission while Presiding Steward Leo Ballistretti and Association Steward Frank Miller were released by track manager Dan Peters with the approval of the Western Idaho Fair Board.

In a statement, the commission said they were taking the action because the stewards "failed to perform their duties to the expectations and satisfaction of the commission."

Firefighters extinguish fires

BOISE (UPI) — Firefighters from the Bureau of Land Management extinguished three fires in Southern Idaho Saturday.

A spokesman said five acres were blackened before firemen put out a blaze in the Adelpe Heights area of the Boise front. BLM firefighters also hauled a 55-gallon fire in the Sugar Creek area west of State Highway 51. It was controlled Saturday afternoon.

The third fire burned 200 acres at the Bell Rapids farm project south of Boise. It was controlled about 12 hours after it started for a lack-to-school and work party."

Shooting suspects in custody

MARSING, Idaho (UPI) — Two men, believed to be illegal aliens, were shot to death early Sunday morning outside the El Rio Bar in Marsing.

The men died at the scene about 12:45 a.m. Owyhee County Sheriff's deputies have not made positive identification, but believe one of the men is 26 years old while the other is 32.

Five suspects are in custody for questioning after the shooting.

Accident claims Boise man

BOISE (UPI) — A 38-year-old Boise man, Kenneth Arthur West, was killed early Sunday morning after his car jumped a curb at the top of Fairview Hill in Boise and struck a tree.

A woman companion, Debbie Meeks, 26, of Boise, who was driving the car, was critically injured. She is undergoing treatment at a Boise hospital.

Police say the auto was apparently traveling at a high rate of speed when it jumped the right-hand curb and slammed into a large tree. The victim was alive when police, Boise firemen and Ada County sheriff deputies pulled him from the wreckage, but he died before he could be placed in an ambulance. Officers had to use extraction equipment to free the woman from the car. Equipment to free the woman from the car.

250 acres burn

BELL RAPIDS — Fire crews Saturday had contained a range fire here which burned about 250 acres, according to Bureau of Land Management officials.

Reported at about 1 a.m. Saturday, the fire was contained by afternoon with about 24 men using five ground tankers and two crawler tractors fighting the blaze.

The burn area is located about 4 to 5 miles north and west of Hagerman.

Andrus tells press 'look to yourself'

SUN VALLEY — Idaho Governor Cecil Andrus says a free press must constantly cast a critical eye on itself to remain free.

Speaking before the Western Broadcasters Corporation, Andrus cautioned that the media, in particular the broadcast media, is under nation-wide attack due to a severe credibility gap.

"Both our professions are holders of a public trust, and yet the public apparently no longer trusts our professions," he said Friday. "Politicians are viewed with suspicion almost as much as the media is viewed with suspicion."

Public polls indicate politicians are near the bottom in the public eye, he said. However, television reporters and newspaper columnists rate little above a politician.

There has been a "Watergate Mentality" developing, Andrus said, since the media uncovered corrupt practices during former President Nixon's term.

"I think it represents as great a threat to the media as did the Nixon Administration's attempt to intimidate the media and to repress the truth from the public," he said.

"Many decent politicians are suffering from the Watergate stigma today because some members of the media feel they have to unearth what they think the public believes to be corruption on all political levels. In short some seek to exploit a myth rather than to seek the truth, which is the customary role of all in the media."

The freedom of the media will be meaningless once the public no longer believes its media to be fair, responsible and truthful, Andrus cautioned.

"Currently, I think the public still supports the free press and a relatively unhampered and unregulated broadcast media," Andrus said. "But even with Watergate to the media's credit, a recent Gallup poll indicates the public still believes the media may not be careful enough in getting its facts straight."

The broadcast media, like politicians, Andrus said, all too often becomes isolated. The two begin to think they know what is truth and the ignorant viewer or listener has to be informed what is "nothing less than once reporter's version of the truth."

The media and politicians must start listening to their public, Andrus warned.

"I believe it is this lack of listening on the part of many members of our respective professions which has resulted in the current low standing our professions are held in by the public," he said.

The media, he said, cannot look to legal safeguards such as shield law to restore the public confidence.

"The media will be held in higher esteem when it has the good sense to listen to the public and re-examine itself and its profession when the people indicate they are beginning to lose confidence," he said.

Record price for sheep paid at Cassia fair sale

BURLEY — A record local price for a sheep was set Saturday in the 4-H and F F A Livestock sale at the Cassia County Fair.

Joe Hewitt received $6 a pound for his grand champion sheep. The 117-pound animal was purchased by KMTV television channel 11 in Twin Falls for $702.

Before the sale, two $300 achievement scholarships were awarded to a pair of 4-H members.

Robert Hilliard, vice-president and manager of Idaho Bank and Trust Co., Burley, presented the scholarships to Sheryl George, Milner, and Bonnie Harpoch, Malta. The scholarships can be applied to a college of the recipient's choice in Idaho.

There were more swine and sheep sold this year in the fair's sale than last year, although the number of buyers was down.

Cassia County Agent Wayne Cole said, "This is probably the highest sale per animal we've ever had."

Krystal Payton's grand champion beef went for $1.20 per pound, a total of $1,520.80 for the 1,274-pound steer. Chuck Skaggs of Skaggs Furniture, Burley, bought the animal.

Cole said buyers averaged 65 cents, compared with 50 cents a pound for this week's high on the Omaha, Neb., market.

Swine averaged $1.30 per pound, compared with 99 cents high on the Omaha market.

Sheep averaged $1.01, compared with 41 cents as the Omaha market high.

The top swine price paid at the fair Saturday was $1.00 per pound by Skaggs Drug Center for Ricky Wrigley's grand champion registered gilt. The 225-pound animal went for $678.

Charles Hendricks, Burley, paid $545 for LaMont Kowitz' grand champion dairy heifer. He said the only dairy heifer would go to Idaho Youth Ranch.

A total of 196 animals had a sale handle of about $76,000, Cole reported.

There were only 78 heves in the sale, down 21 from last year. But there were 72 sheep, up 10 from 1974, and 45 swine, up 10 over last year.

Auctioneers for the sale were William Estes, Donald Manning, Orville Stevens and Gaylord Phillips.

Ferguson, Miami, Okla., had to share the steer wrestling title with Dan Neil of Twin Falls, Neil downed his steer Saturday night in 3.2 seconds to match the Burley record set by Ferguson.

Frank Shepperson, Midwest, Wyo., added $270 with third place in steer wrestling by downing a steer Thursday in time of 4.6, to give him a total of $1,269 this season.

Ferguson ranks fifth in this year's all-around standings. His winnings at Burley give him a total of $26,265, about $2,000 behind Leo Camarillo, Ferguson and Neil each picked up $473 in the steer wrestling. Ferguson won $588 in the roping.

Rupert farmer's pigs cause neighbor's grunt

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — A western Minidoka County farmer may have too many pigs in the wrong place.

Ed Topliff, who raises livestock southwest of Paul, faces the possibility of being declared a commercial feedlot operator. A complaint has been lodged by Jim Tateoka, a neighbor living south of Topliff.

Topliff appeared before the Minidoka County Zoning Commission Thursday night to deny he has a commercial feedlot and to say the newer feedlot he constructed a year ago are within 1,000 feet of Tateoka's house.

The commission directed zoning administrator Will McClung to measure the distance.

Zoning laws state that feedlots with a capacity of over 200 head of livestock are commercial and cannot be constructed within 1,000 feet of another's dwelling.

Topliff told the commission the original lots were there before Tateoka moved into his home. His was built in 1957 and the other before the fall of 1964.

He said he had cattle in them and had sold and kept cattle consistently without complaints.

He said the new feedlots are all north of the old ones and further from Tateoka's house.

Chairman Henry Schodde told Topliff the commission is not concerned with the old lots but that the new lots are not legal if Topliff has more than 200 head of livestock.

Topliff denied that he has about 200 weaner pigs because "a boar got into my ells." He said he has 81 or 82 head of cattle. He also raises sheep.

But Topliff denied he was going to commercial operation. He said he is cutting back and plans to hold only 12-15 sows.

Topliff claimed that the Tateoka "complaint came because we shot a few of their damned dogs." He said the dogs had been killing his sheep and chasing his goats and he had warned Tateoka to keep his dogs away from the livestock.

Robert Nielsen, attorney for the commission, said the commission could do nothing about the buildings and old pens because they are a prior existing use. He also pointed out that shooting dogs had nothing to do with the zoning or ordinance.

However, he explained, if the new ones "have a capacity for more than 200 head of livestock . . . you have to be over 1,000 feet from Tateoka's house" with the new structures.

"If there's any question on the 1,000 feet, let's just measure it," suggested George Headmire, member of the commission.

"They're built now," said Topliff.

"Then let's hope it's over 1,000 feet," replied Nielsen.

"If it's not, we're going to have to ask you to move some of your pens."

Fair set Tuesday at Jerome

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — Activities are in full swing today at the Jerome County Fairgrounds as residents prepare for Tuesday's opening of the Jerome Fair and Rodeo.

The four days of activity will begin Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. with a parade through downtown Jerome. Trey Mink, Jerome, will serve as marshal for the parade. The theme of this year's parade is "Changing Times."

Parade participants will assemble at West Eighth Avenue and North Lincoln and the route will be past St. Benedict's Hospital on Lincoln, turning west at East First Street, then south at the park and west on Main Street, to the fairgrounds.

Top cowboys are expected to compete in three nights of rodeo activity, set to begin at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. Stock for the rodeo is being provided by Stephens Brothers, Middleton, Idaho.

Only two Jerome girls are vying for the title of Jerome County Fair and Rodeo Queen. The queen contest had been in danger of being canceled this year because of lack of entries.

Andy Scherer and Robin Jewett are seeking the crown, which will be presented on the final night of rodeo activities.

Five girls are competing for junior princess. They are Lorrie Black, Jeanie Bremer, Cathie Cummins, Wendy Churchman and Janice Nelson.

The Ninth Annual Amateur Western Horse Show began at 8 a.m. today and ran until 2 p.m. The show is sponsored by the Jerome Junior Posse and is held each year prior to the opening of the official Fair and Rodeo.

A special 4-H and FFA awards assembly will be held in the arena at 8 p.m. Friday.

Health aide asks removal of carcasses from stream

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The district health department environmentalist here will ask the U. S. Forest Service today to remove 15 to 30 dead sheep carcasses lying in a stream north of Triumph.

District environmentalist Dave Dingman said he photographed the decaying sheep this weekend. The carcasses appeared to have been there for some time, Dingman said.

Ketchum district ranger Tom Farr said today he did not know the sheep were there. The Forest Service patrols Federal Gulch campground, Farr said. The carcasses must have been put there recently or died there recently, Farr said.

Dingman said the carcasses appeared to be about half decomposed. He said there was a terrible stench in the area. The dead sheep were lying in and around a small stream feeder where the water was flowing.

Brambilla wins Austrian GP

ZELTWEG, Austria (UPI) — Vittorio Brambilla of Italy, driving a March, denied constant rains on the twisting Oesterreichring circuit Sunday to win the Austrian Grand Prix and to score the first Formula One victory of his career.

Local hero Niki Lauda of Austria finished only sixth and remained half a point short of the world title he hoped to clinch here.

The race, marred by several pre-race accidents, including a serious one to U.S. driver Mark Donohue, and poor weather conditions was stopped after 29 of 54 laps so that the top six were allocated only half of the usual point score.

Lauda thus ended up with a total of 51.5 points in the World Drivers' Standings, 17.5 points ahead of his closest rival, Carlos Reutemann of Argentina.

Donohue in for brain surgery

ZELTWEG, Austria (UPI) — U.S. driver Mark Donohue was reported out of danger Sunday following brain surgery after he crashed his car in practice for the Austrian Grand Prix.

"We have removed a blood clot from his brain and he is now out of danger," doctors at the Graz Hospital said. "He is still in the intensive care unit for permanent observation but his condition is no longer critical."

Rose & Reds top fading Pirates

By United Press International

Everything's coming up roses for Cincinnati.

Pete Rose rapped a single, his 2,900th career hit, to clinch a two-run seventh inning Sunday that gave the Cincinnati Reds a 3-1 victory over fading Pittsburgh and reduced the "Pirates" lead in the National League to only one-half game over Philadelphia.

The triumph was the seventh in a row for the Reds, who lead Los Angeles by 17½ games in the NL West, while the Pirates suffered their sixth straight loss and 17th in their last 22 games. Pat Barry, with relief help from Jim Carroll, Will McEnaney and Randy Eastwick, gained his ninth victory against five losses.

In other NL action, Philadelphia pounded San Diego 10-4, St. Louis routed Atlanta 8-1, Chicago downed Houston 11-7. Los Angeles defeated Montreal 5-3 and New York blanked San Francisco 3-0.

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — Ralph Kiner, a seven-time National League home run king during the 1940s and 1950s, will be inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame Monday along with four other famous personalities of the past.

Joining the former Pittsburgh Pirate slugger in the shrine will be Earl Averill and Billy Herman, two stars of the 1930s and 1940s; Bucky Harris, baseball's original "boy wonder" manager, and Judy Johnson, whose feats are lost in the mists of the old Negro Leagues but survive in the memories of his peers.

The induction ceremonies, presided over by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, will be held on the porch of the National Baseball Library beginning at 10 a.m. They will be followed by a game between the Boston Red Sox and the San Francisco Giants.

Kiner, now a television commentator for the New York Mets, was one of the greatest sluggers of his era. A 6-foot, 21-inch, 200-pound right-handed batter, Kiner led the National League in homers in his first seven seasons and wound up with a career total of 369 for 10 major league seasons.

Don Bies wins in Hartford playoff

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Don Bies, who had not won a first prize in eight years of the professional Golf Association tour, Sunday, defeated Hubie Green in a sudden-death playoff to win the $200,000 greater Hartford Open.

A 10-foot birdie putt on the second extra hole, which was the 16th-at-the-Wethersfield Country Club, locked up the coveted $40,000 first place purse for Bies.

Bies had to rally to earn his birth in the playoff after squandering a two-stroke lead with five holes to play.

Bies bogied the 18th to give J.C. Snead, playing in the last foursome with Bies, an opening.

Snead had four birdies in a row on holes 14 through 17 as he went one stroke ahead with a six-foot birdie on the 18th.

Bies birdied the 16th with a 15-footer while Snead parred that hole and the two tied at 17 under with a hole to play.

Meanwhile, in the threesome ahead of them, Green and Larry Nelson were also making their charges. Both scored 16 under on the 18th tee. Nelson bogied the final hole, but Green sank a 15-footer for a birdie to go 17 under and put pressure on the two other contenders behind him.

Bies responded by salvaging par on the 18th after missing a birdie but Snead had all kinds of trouble, wound up in a trap, and eventually ended up with a bogie, playing himself out of the playoffs.

On the first extra hole, the 18th, Bies and Green each had parours. On the 19th, a parfive, Green put his third shot in the trap but came out nicely and sank a 12-footer for a par.

Bies, on the green in three,

Washam win LPGA

Berg golf

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Third-year pro Joann Washam shot a five-under-par 67 Sunday for a third par-tied 206 to win the LPGA's Fidelity Bank Classic, her fourth stroke over defending champion JoAnne Carner and Jocelyne Boursier.

The 36-year-old victory was the first on the tour for the Fort Worth, Tex., 25-year-old. Her previous best finish was third-place in the Naples-Lely Classelast year.

Miss Washam eagled two holes, birdied two others, and had only one bogie in shooting the best round of the day. She led Mrs. Carter, Carol Mann, U.S. Open champion Sandra Palmer and Diana Caponi Young by two strokes going into the final titlular.

"I played well and hung in there and wouldn't let go," said the 5-foot-4, 117-pound Texan. "Fortunately, I didn't put the pressure on myself. I just played the course and not the other golfers."

"I went into a calm," she said. Carol Mann and Sandy Palmer were in my threesome and they both helped me maintain myself."

sunk a six-footer for a birdie four and victory.

"The six-foot putt on the 16th was Huber made a great putt for par, but I had a double bogie like 15 feet, but I put it and that's what counts," Bies beamed.

"We all know this is my first win ever," he said. "I had a great feeling all week and this just clinched it."

White males lead scientific field

WASHINGTON, D.C. - In 1974, the large majority of the persons in most science and engineering fields were men, according to a nationwide survey conducted for the National Science Foundation by the Bureau of the Census.

Of the eight fields covered by the survey, six were about 85 per cent male or more. Those with the highest proportions of men were engineering and environmental sciences, 99 and 97 per cent men, respectively.

Men also accounted for about 65 per cent or more of computer specialists, mathematical specialists, life scientists and physical scientists. The two fields with fewer men were psychology, about 72 per cent male, and social science, about 79 per cent men, respectively.

At least 90 per cent of the persons in each of the eight fields were male, according to the report. The proportion of blacks, however, was less than 1 per cent of the engineers and environmental scientists to nearly 4 per cent of the mathematical specialists. The largest proportion of Japanese, Chinese and Koreans was found among the physical scientists and mathematical specialists - about 4 per cent in each field.

Insurance class offered

TWIN FALLS - A class called property insurance, in session 122, will be offered at the College of Southern Idaho, beginning at 4:15 p.m. on Aug. 27 in room 102 of the Shields Building.

The class will run to 9:30 p.m. each Wednesday and will conclude in December with a national examination from Insurance Institute of America.

Vernon Berg will instruct the course covering policy provisions and concepts common to property insurance. For more information, call 734-9554, ext. 222.

Median salary for scientists who reported 1974 salary (not including bonuses, overtime, or second jobs) ranged from $17,550 for life scientists to $19,927 for environmental scientists, the report says. In every field, about 50 to 70 per cent of those reporting their salary earned between $15,000 and $25,000.

The survey showed wide differences among fields in attainment of academic degrees. For nearly 70 per cent of the computer specialists and engineers, the bachelor's degree was the highest degree earned, but only 10 per cent of the psychologists and 25 per cent of the social scientists held their master's degree.

The situation for doctors was almost reversed: 58 per cent of psychologists held doctorates, compared to less than 5 per cent of engineers and computer specialists. The proportion of scientists with master's degrees showed less variation, ranging between 20 and 35 per cent depending on the field.

Few scientists or engineers were currently unemployed, according to the report, but those who had been unemployed during 1974 were out of work a relatively long time.
